

Users who go to strom don't have any indication of how busy it is, making it difficult to assess whether or not the gym will be crowded prior to your visit. This introduces hurdles when attempting to coordinate workouts, both individually and in groups, as during peak hours many machines have low or no availability.